Prohibitionists Organize

A good crowd was in attendance at the Methodist Church Sunday evening last, when Mr Marks gave his address on the coming Plebiscite on Nov. 5th. The gentleman pointed out to those assembled the benefits to be derived from a continuance of the present Liquor Act. The after meeting was taken up with the work of organizing for the campaign. After Assemblyman Washburn was nominated as chairman, and declined the honor, Dr Oatway was nominated, and accepted, Rev F E Wilson is the secretary. These two, with several more to be appointed, will form the committee.

Stony Plain W. L.

The meeting of September 12th was held at the home of Mrs R A Walton, with the First Vice President, Mrs J F Clarke, in the chair, and 16 members present.

After the usual business, Mrs J Malloch read a splendid paper on Current Events. Then followed a humorous reading by Mrs D McDonald, "Anne Says Her Prayers," taken from "Anne of Green Gables."

Mrs Wood gave a concise talk on the Coming Plebiscite and Preferential Ballot, after which dainty refreshments were served by Mrs F E Wilson and Mrs C E Clarke.

Ray's Notes.

The taxi suddenly came to a halt in the middle of the street. "What's the matter?" called the man from the back seat.

"I thought the young lady said 'Stop,'" answered the chauffeur. "Well, she wasn't talking to me."

For a Cheese Factory.

Mr Waulbaum, of the Woodland Dairy Co., on Saturday finished a very complete canvass of Stony Plain district and the districts west, with the object of securing sufficient patronage for the establishment of a cheese factory at this point. About the only hitch the canvasser encountered was securing an agreement with dairymen for the daily delivery of milk to the concern, the milk producers apparently thinking this a waste of energy. Mr Waulbaum was disappointed, on visiting Duffield and other centres west, to find that the dairy business was carried on on such a small scale, when the possibilities for this enterprise are so great. The results from his campaign will be looked forward to with interest.

Canada's Achievements In Industry And Finance Is Subject Of Comment

Canada is much better off, in case of a coal strike, than she was last year. Her crops are good. She has imported some 7,000 British harvesters in addition to her own for her nearly 400,000,000 bushels of wheat. Through railroads, steamship companies and various associations she is actively promoting colonization. Close neighbor as she is, and with so large a population of former Americans, probably few of us have realized her remarkable achievements in trade, industry and finance, says the New York Times. The Index, published by the New York Trust Company, reminds us that Canada, with less than 9,000,000 population, is first in the world in proportion of exports per capita of population and actually fourth in volume of exports.

Her world trade for the year ended June, 1923, was nearly $1,350,000,000. Our population is more than twelve times hers. Our world trade for the same twelve months amounted to $7,738,324,000, only about four times hers. The whole volume of trade between the two countries was about $380,000,000, say an eighth of the value of our whole-world trade. Canada's exports, valued at $294,000,000, bought of us goods valued at $385,000,000; and the increase in her exports was larger than that of ours to her. Her import and export trade with us was more valuable than all her trade with the British Empire, though that, too, made decided gains.

Canada is already "our second best customer," not much behind Great Britain; and she may easily become our best customer. Both our people and our capital have been pouring into the Dominion largely. In the years from 1900 to 1922 nearly 1,400,000 Americans crossed the northern border. The Yankee immigrants were more than one-third of the total immigration in that time; outnumbered the British by more than 30,000. American investments in Canada are estimated at $2,500,000,000, nearly as much as British investments; and two-thirds of this sum has gone there since 1914. American bonds $70,000,000 of Canadian Government provincial and municipal bonds; the British hold $511,000,000. American industrial investments in Canada amount to nearly $850,000,000, about 31 per cent. of the whole, while British capital in the same enterprises is estimated at $255,000,000, slightly more than 10 per cent. of the total. Railways, mines, automobile manufactures, meat packing, metals, paint, pulp and paper, and oil refining are the main American investments.

With her immense, thinly populated area, Canada is still chiefly an agricultural country. Her farm property is valued at $6,830,000,000, her manufactures at about half that sum; but these are moving ahead rapidly. Water power is being developed on a large scale. The sum of $330,000,000 was spent on building in 1922, an increase of more than $90,000,000 over 1921. Canada is on the high road to a marvelous development, and by her prosperity the United States will be made more prosperous. Our interests and hers are in many respects inseparably entwined.

His Oxford Drawl

An old clergyman sent his son to Oxford. The boy was not brilliant, and college did not improve him; but he cultivated what he believed was the correct Oxford drawl, and when he came down for the summer vacation his father was eager to hear him preach. The son was prepared to show him how to do it. In the morning, after sundry posturings, he announced his text: "He that hath yain to rah, let him show rah." In the afternoon his text was, "Now Bawbahba was a wobbah." At night the old man came on, and took his text: "Lord have mercy on my son, for he is a lunatic and sore tormented."

Offer B.C. Lumber

The Destroyed Japanese Cities

Tokio, Yokohama and Nagoya Were All flourishing Centres

Tokio, the capital of Japan and situated at the head of the landlocked Bay of Tokyo, had a population of 2,000,000 in 1910, when the last census was taken. Its suburbs add greatly to the total, although the principal railroad centre of the empire, Tokio, is not an important manufacturing centre. It has a water system, electric gas lighting, good macadamized roads, public libraries, public works, transportation, education and sanitation being carried on according to the methods of civilized cities all over the world. The imperial university has six faculties and over 2,000 students. The city has suffered several times before from severe earthquakes.

Yokohama, the chief seaport and treaty port of the empire, is on the Bay of Tokyo, about 17 miles south-west of Tokio, of which it is the port. It had a population of about 500,000. It is a city of marked contrast, the foreign quarters and business district being well built, while the native section is poor. There were many handsome business structures in the city.

Nagoya is the chief city of Owari Province, Honshu, and has a population of approximately 600,000. It is the fifth of the chief cities of Japan. Nagoya is well known as one of the great seats of the pottery trade, to which the manufacture of porcelain is rapidly being added. It lies at the head of the shallow Inland Sea, about 20 miles from the Port of Yokohama, with which it communicates by rail and light-draught steamers. Nagoya is a great centre of export for all of the surrounding district. Cotton mills have been established there and an extensive embroidery business is carried on. It is further distinguished as the birthplace of cloisonne, enamelling in Japan.

A museum of voices is being conducted in Berlin, wherein all the languages known will be kept on record.

Saved Settlers From Starvation

Monument to Memory of Birds Erected in Utah

In Salt Lake City, Utah, is one of the two monuments in the world—the other is in Italy—erected to the memory of birds. This monument commemorates the fact that about the year 1850 the original settlers in Utah were saved from starvation by sea gulls.

A year after their arrival the white settlers were alarmed to observe that their crops were being devoured by myriads of crickets and grasshoppers, which over-ran the country until it was as if it had been scorched by fire. Prayer was resorted to, and one day, as if in answer to their appeals, there appeared a great flock of sea gulls, which proceeded to devour the pests, and it was not until the "enemy" had been completely annihilated that the gulls took to their wings and disappeared.

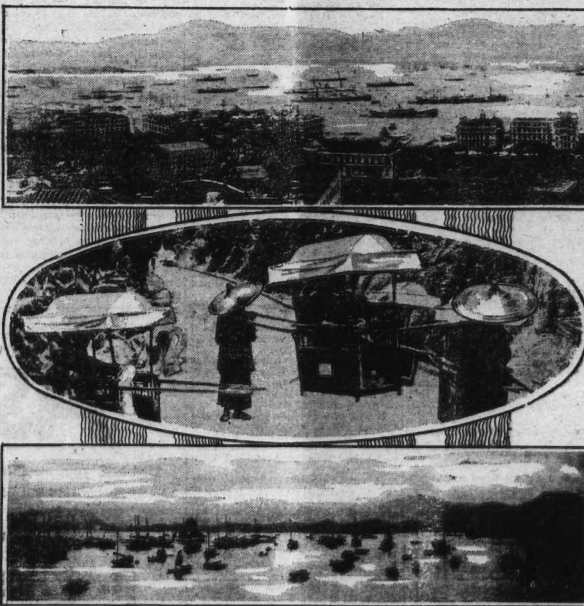

The monument commemorating the event was unveiled in 1915.

Supplies For Japan

Red Cross Sending Large Consignment Of Essential Goods

Supplies are being rushed to Japan by the Canadian Government for relief of the thousands of victims of the recent earthquakes, fire and floods in Tokio and Yokohama. Large quantities of foodstuffs have been purchased by the Department of Trade and Commerce, a considerable part of which is canned milk. Lumber and other materials are also being sent. The Canadian Red Cross Society is arranging to send large consignments of essential goods at the earliest possible moment. Throughout Canada the people are organizing to help Japan in its time of serious need.

NO LIKE-E DEVIL PIDGIN

(1) From the road to the Peak. (2) Chairs and coolies at the entrance to the public gardens. (3) The Harbor of Hong Kong near Tsim Sha Tsui at dusk.

One of the most fascinating panoramas in the world is seen from the Peak at Hong Kong. At every bend of the road there will be so much to feast your eyes upon and so many attractions from flower, plant, tree, hill, creek, dale, mountain and sea as you haphazardly "wand your way down" that you will have suddenly "dropped upon" the Public Gardens, which are more than half-way. The entrances are on your path on either side. The Gardens are charming. You will wander over these acres, covered as they are, with unique and harmonious collections of the hundreds of various flowers, plants, shrubs and trees nurtured there, many of which you have probably never seen before. With a mental note to return to the Gardens at the first opportunity you leave and continue your way. Take a chair into town, a Chinese sedan, one of these waiting outside the gates. It may occur to you to "snap" with your camera the chairs and the coolies, the latter in their quaint and scanty costume. You will find, however, that the coolies have a distinct aversion to "being took." The lower class Chinese are superstitious. In fact, the Men of Han, as the Chinese proudly designate their race, all are. The coolies are obsessed with the idea that photography is "devil-pidgin,"

Predicts Huge Gains In Population Of West In The Next Few Years

Imports of Some Plants Prohibited

New Regulations of the Department of Agriculture Come Into Effect

The new regulations of the Department of Agriculture under the Destructive Insect and Pest Act, requiring the inspection of all imported nursery stock, went into effect on the 1st of September. Importers of nursery stock, which includes all plants for ornamental purposes or propagation, such as trees, shrubs, vines, bulbs, perennials, etc., except seeds, will be required in future to secure a permit before shipments are brought into Canada.

Imports must be inspected before leaving the country of origin and a certificate of inspection must accompany the invoice. Imports from other countries than the United States can enter Canada only through St. John, N.B., Montreal, Niagara Falls or Vancouver. At these points shipments will be re-inspected or large shipment may be allowed to proceed to destination for inspection. The import of certain plants, the official announcement adds, has been prohibited on account of insect pests or plant diseases.

Alberta Butts

Alberta's butter stands third among the provinces of the Dominion in respect both of quality and quantity, according to a Federal report just issued, which states that the 1922 production was 15,417,000 pounds, valued at $5,126,844.

The Matterhorn, one of the most difficult climbs in the world, has an average incline of only 30 degrees.

It is better to have loved and lost than to be the victim of a breach of promise suit.

"It is the intention of the Canadian National Railways to use every possible instrument in the Dominion of Canada and the British Isles, not only to bring desirable people into the country, but to take care of them after they arrive," was the earnest declaration of W. D. Robb, Vice-President in charge of colonization, development and other departments of the Canadian National Railways, in speaking on transportation at a luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition Directors in Toronto.

"The Canadian National Railways, since the advent of the present management, have been planning an active and effective organization to deal with the important need of Canada for greater population," said Mr. Robb. "The policy of the Canadian National Railways must, of necessity, be regulated by that of the Dominion Government, and Canada's ability to absorb and assimilate newcomers."

"I am firmly of the belief that it is not so much the endeavor to bring in people to the country that is going to solve our problem, as making the conditions here so attractive that people will desire to come of their own accord. Probably one of the most potent factors will be the introduction of necessary capital to develop our natural resources and many industries that can be built up on them. There are many forces at work today to bring about this result, and one of the most significant is the presence at this exhibition of a number of firms representing the great federations of British industries, the most important organized association of manufacturers in the world, representing more than twenty-five billion dollars of capital."

"While they realize that the Dominion, as a result of the financial assistance, will, to the extent of its power, endeavor to develop its own manufacturing industries, and in many cases will compete with the goods of the Mother Country, they take the broad view that by so doing these Dominions will increase their international prosperity, and thus provide a wider market within the Empire for the goods of the Mother Country."

"The railways of this country were brought into existence to perform the task of turning the vast waste spaces into populated areas. When these are filled," concluded Mr. Robb, "with an industrious people yielding traffic, it will be time to apply to the railway some of the tests that reasonably apply to other business from the outset. The western country is only now coming into its own, and it is my prediction that in a few years many hundreds of thousands of settlers will be added to the population. It is our intention to direct attention to the maritime provinces, which offer singular opportunities to the people of the British Isles."

Walk and Be Healthy

People Do Not Take Enough Exercise Says Physician

A prominent consulting physician of national reputation commenting upon the increasing large number of men and women who are afflicted with nervous disorders of various kinds, states emphatically that this growing evil is largely the result of lack of proper exercise. He states that if people would walk at least two miles a day regularly, they would never know what insomnia or high blood pressure means. He claims that over feeding and under exercise are two greatest enemies of health and happiness. He says that street cars and automobiles are the bane of modern urban life and unless this temptation to ride is overcome or properly regulated, the next generation will be flabby and anemic. There is not the least doubt that the use of good shoes, leather means increased efficiency both physically and mentally. "Walk and Be Healthy" is a slogan, well worth keeping before the present generation. A mile a day will keep the doctor away.

ELINOR MARSDEN ELIOT
Author of "My Candors," and Other Stories

Published by Special Arrangement with the author.

He is too close to me now for me to describe him as he is, but what he was then is as clear in my mind as it was in that first moment—though he was I never looked at him—I knew instinctively and doubly that Margaret Anne was case person, and that the world contained but one man. And I been the modest maiden of B.F.'s belief I should no doubt have tried to conquer my feelings, but the thing seemed inevitable. B.F. and the boys dropped into a world of shadows, together with my worldly ambitions and of over-extended, a world that I would never have anything to do with the men I knew only in the business world.

But that does not describe Murray. His transfer papers told me that he was twenty-five, the son of a Presbyterian minister in a little town near Ottawa, that like myself he had been cultivated and then gone into business, that he was five feet, ten, and a half inches in height, had grey eyes and light brown hair; and that he had never been suspected of the misappropriation of funds. When his papers did not say that he was the light-hearted creature living, that he could do more work with a smile than anyone else in the office, and that even the fussiest and most stupid customer could never irritate him. Every one liked him, but he was not spoiled, and he had the most wholesome, optimistic attitude towards the world. I do not think that at that time he had even given a thought to the great problems of life, he might have done that came next, with an instinctive trust that all little tangles would straighten themselves out in the end.

That he was immediately popular in the office goes without saying. Just at first I was afraid that he had the trait I most distrust in men—a certain susceptibility where women are concerned—but as I grew to know him better I learned that this was only on the surface. It may seem an undignified smile, but he was exactly like a friendly puppy. Pat him and he would wag his tail! And he never lacked for pathos. A sensible person would have said that I was merely jealous, but the feeling went deeper than that. I knew that if I did not marry him there was nothing for me but to become a shining light in the business world. And I wondered if I could love him so hard that he would never miss the others. It was all shockingly primitive—a judgment on me, doubtless—and I was glad that my office veneer was so thick that I was believed to be either indignantly indifferent or disappointed because the staff of the new department had been brought from the East, over our heads.

Strangely enough, B.F. took to Murray at once, and it was through him that we first met socially—and, as Murray put it, had an opportunity to talk to each other without a ledger between us.

Mother and I often went to Maudie's for tea on Sunday, and one day early in November, Maudie met us with the astonishing news that "Uncle Frank" was out for a walk with one of the new men from the office and would bring him back for tea. My heart turned completely over at least twice, but Maudie is one of those dear stupid girls who never see anything that is not explained to her, so nothing more was said.

That was the beginning of the end. It turned out that Mother knew someone who knew someone else who knew an aunt of Murray's, and the first thing I knew she had asked him to call. He came the next week and Mother quite lost her head over him. But he told me that I must not freeze him out. I did not know a great deal about men, and I was afraid that he would think my holding back a calculated lure to draw him on, but for a long while I did not dare even to be friendly. I have always resented the commonly-held belief that a man must be played like a fish—as if the whole wonderful thing were a game to be won by the most crafty. I have always valued most what I was most sure of, and I have never been conceited enough to think my self an exception in that respect. When other girls would talk of "keeping a man interested" by breaking appointments and pretending to prefer others, and so on, I used to wonder what they expected to do if they ever married. If they really thought their husbands would no longer care for them once they were sure of them.

And I had my reward. One of the loveliest things Murray ever told me was that from the very first he knew that if I ever came to care for him he could be as sure of me as he was of his mother, and that he had always meant to marry a girl of that sort, even if he did amuse himself with the other kind.

"There is enough of you to satisfy me," he said. "You don't have to give a little bit with one hand and take it away with the other."

Perhaps I am too hard on the women to whom "The Game is the thing."

CHAPTER THREE

In April of 1914 Mother took a severe cold which rapidly developed into pneumonia.

I had never known her to be ill and, while I was naturally very much concerned, it was not until the doctor prepared me for it that the thought of her not recovering ever entered my mind. Several months before, so the doctor told me, Mother had consulted him, and he had found that her heart was not normal. And now the danger was that it might not be strong enough to stand the strain of an acute illness. She recovered from the pneumonia, however, and we brought her home from the hospital. That she was content to stay in bed until noon, and then to lie on the couch for the rest of the day, seemed quite reasonable to me, and once when she hinted at the possibility of my being left alone I would not listen to her. At another time she talked to me very frankly about Murray, and though even to Mother it was hard for me to say what I felt, I am glad now that she knew and was satisfied.

But I could not believe that she was not growing stronger as the days went by, and when one Sunday morning she did not wake I thought I should die too.

It was then I learned how many friends I had, though it was Murray who kept me sane in that awful first month. Sometimes now when I want to tease him I tell him that he never really asked me to marry for him. And he is forced to admit the truth of the accusation. He simply came in as a matter of course and took everything into his own hands, did all that was necessary about Mother's affairs, and when everything was settled, told me that there was nothing to be gained by waiting and that he wanted to have me right to take care of me as soon as I would give it to him. Then it came out that he and Mother had had a long talk, and that that was doing in accordance with her wishes. But I could not agree. I felt that I must have time to get a grip on myself. And though my sorrow had brought us closer and closer together, and seemed now that what he alone could give me, it did not seem fair to him to take him so sad a heart. So we arranged at last that we would be married in September and go East for a month. I knew that I should never cease to miss Mother, but I hoped by that time to have learned to cover the pain, so as not to compel others to sympathize with it.

And in August war broke out. Through the long days of that first year, when all Winnipeg was tense with anxiety, and when men and women put each other to the test, I could see that Murray was worried. So on Saturday night I fought my own battle, and on Sunday told him that he must feel as free to go as if he had never known me.

And then I discovered what no doubt many women have discovered before and since, though we do not speak of it even to each other. Murray was not thinking only of me, he was torn between his sense of duty and a hatred of war in all its phases. "But we've got to see it through," Margaret Anne" he said grimly. "The one thing worse than war would be to let the Germans succeed, this world is not going to be fit to live in if they are allowed to run it according to their ideas."

And a few minutes later, "I am not afraid of being killed, though I never had so much reason to live, please don't think me a coward. It is the thought of killing that almost drives me mad. And yet when I think of Belgium, and that in it only the lives of men that stand between you and those horrors I feel that I cannot go on enough."

I let him talk it all out, and I think I convinced him that I understood how he felt.

But my next task was not an easy one. I felt sure that Murray was the sort of man who would believe it right to leave me free, and I was determined that he should not. Suppose he should come home crippled or even helpless—and I knew it was of that he was thinking—why should I not have the right to do for him what he would willingly do for me?

It was very hard to tell him that I wanted him to marry me before he went away, but I was fighting for the future. And when he begged, "Don't tempt me, Margaret Anne!" I knew that I had won.

So we changed our plans just a trifle and were married in August instead of in September. Some of our friends approved and some disapproved, but all were interested. And only a few were brave enough to put their disapproval into words.

"I think I'm the most romantic thing I ever heard of!" Maudie assured me.

And Mrs. Stevenson hoped that I would never have cause to regret my rashness.

"Young people will be young people, I suppose," she sighed. "But I hope you have considered that you may perhaps be burdened with a helpless husband, or perhaps left a young widow."

But then she gave me a beautiful tablecloth and kissed me for Mother, so I forgave her. And I hid the tablecloth away at the bottom of my trunk, for I could not look at it without thinking that I might never need to use it. The priest at the office gave us a luncheon, and presented Murray with the usual wrist watch, and me with a case of silver. The luncheon was a very sad affair, and Murray made the speech of his life, but there were tears just below the surface. I myself was so upset that I almost kissed the man after.

I did kiss poor old B.F. at the station, and he was so fearfully embarrassed that I knew he had quite recovered, especially as he promised Murray to be a father to me.

Murray and I spent two weeks together at his home, and then went on to Valcartier and joined the 8th, attached with the Alvinas so as to be near him as long as possible, and then when the First Contingent had sailed, I came back to Winnipeg, and took up my work where I had dropped it.

England's Laziest Village

Vicar Thinks Credit Should Be Given to Broxholme

Which is the laziest village in England? asks the London Daily News.

If the rector, the Rev. H. J. Griffin, is to be believed, the credit must be given to Broxholme, six miles from London.

There are only twenty-three houses in the village, but the rector says he finds the task of administering to the spiritual needs of the 105 habitually tired souls who comprise its black discouraging and exasperating one.

It has long been a sore point with him that on Sunday only a sprinkling of his parishioners trouble to walk the steeple's throw which separates the church from the village.

He complains, too, that after weeks of preparation and advertising recently not one of the 105 arrived at a garden table in the rectory grounds in aid of parochial needs.

In fairness to the men of Broxholme, however, it should be said that they do sometimes take a constitutional—invariably on the day when the rector has decided that the leave of the graveyard require sweeping up.

The sight of a score or so of rusties watching the rector over the churchyard wall as, in shirt sleeves, he bends to his task, has his humorous side, but the rector has yet to find it.

Branding Criminals

Turkish Police Adopting English Fifteenth Century Method

So a dispatch from Constantinople states that the Turkish police are reverting to the English 15th century mode of marking habitual criminals. Whereas England used to cut off the ears of criminals, the Turkish officials are tattooing or burning old offenders so that they may be recognized. Strong measures are needed, it is said, because of a tremendous influx of the worst element from all Near Eastern countries since the end of the war. These added to the already notorious criminal class of Constantinople, make it one of the worst cities for criminal activity in the entire world.

Manitoba Dairy Products

The Manitoba Government will shortly appoint a commission to investigate marketing of dairy products with a view to establishing co-operative agencies at country points and endeavor to get better prices for these products both to the importer and consumer.

Germany Is Willing To Give Guarantees To End Ruhr Dispute

Berlin.—Chancellor Stresemann, in an address today, declared: "We are ready to give real guarantees in order to secure freedom of the Ruhr."

He admitted that a solution of the problem could not be obtained by passive resistance.

Addressing a gathering of newspaper editors, the Chancellor, after reviewing the economic position, turned to foreign questions and said that without a solution of the foreign political dispute the financial situation could not be settled and the collapse of the mark could not be restrained.

A solution of the Ruhr dispute could not be achieved solely by continuance of passive resistance; nor could the question be settled by a policy of force.

"For us," continued the Chancellor, "the question of the sovereignty of the Rhineland and regaining the freedom of the Ruhr territory is decisive. For it, we are ready to give real guarantees." M. Poincaré, in a recent speech, said he preferred the positive securities which France had in hand to the finest theoretical rights. He did not intend to exchange pledges for general guarantees.

"What I suggested referred to the direct enlistment of private property. If mortgages in favor of the Reich were entered into on property of a state and on private property of economic organizations of a pledge to the extent of a percentage of this property, then these mortgages could be transferred to a trusteeship as a real negotiable asset.

"In the administration of this trusteeship, the reparation creditors would actively participate. The proceeds accruing from these mortgages would be paid to the trustees, who would then be in a position to issue. Thus, France would come into immediate possession of large sums of money and the interest on these payments would be guaranteed.

"Before these guarantees can be obtained, Germany must be permitted the right to administer the Ruhr and recover her sovereignty in the Rhineland. These guarantees are capable of solving the question of passive resistance, provided we are given assurance that on the basis of such an understanding the Ruhr will be evacuated and the Rhineland will be accorded its former rights.

Royalty Benefits By Lord Farquhar's Will

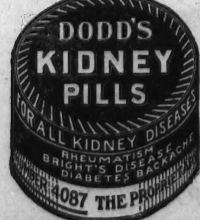

Bulk of Lord Steward's Estate Goes to Royal Family

London.—Earl Farquhar, who died recently, left the bulk of his £400,000 estate to the members of the British royal family. Half the estate will go to Princess Arthur of Connaught.

Lord Carnegie, the Earl of Southesk, will receive £250,000. To Prince George, youngest son of King George, is bequeathed £2,000. King George will get anything he may select from the residence of Earl Farquhar. Queen Mary is bequeathed the Earl's property at White Lodge, Richmond Park, the home of the Duke and Duchess of York.

The late Earl of Farquhar was formerly lord steward and master of the household of King Edward and King George.

Eskimos to Pay Penalty

Two Murderers Sentenced to be Hanged in the Far North

Edmonton.—A special despatch to The Bulletin from Fort McMurray says:

"At the Herschel Island detachment station of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in the Arctic Ocean, two Eskimo murderers sentenced to death by Judge Lucien Dubeau will be hanged by the Government executioner on December 7. Another coast native, also accused of murder, received a sentence of three years' imprisonment.

"The executioner, who went north with the judicial party from Edmonton, remained at Herschel Island, but will probably be brought to the 'outside' by dog team via the Yukon and Alaska on the completion of his dread duties.

Ottawa.—The report from Fort McMurray that three Eskimos have been sentenced at the Herschel Island Royal Canadian Mounted Police station makes it clear that the law will be avenged on the death of Corporal Doak, of the R.C.M.P., and Otto Binder, a white trader.

It was stated at R.C.M.P. headquarters that some seven Eskimos were to be tried on charges connected with faction fights in Kent Peninsula and Victoria Land in which a number of the natives had been slain. One Eskimo connected with the Kent Peninsula affray was arrested by Corporal Doak and taken to the Tree River station. Here, he secured access to a rifle and shot and killed Corporal Doak, and then, in the same fashion, killed Otto Binder, manager of a Hudson's Bay trading post, who had been associated with the quarrel. It is regarded as certain that one of the Eskimos who has received sentence of death is this double murderer.

B.C. To Lead Industrially

Will Soon Have Edge on the East is Opinion Given

Victoria, B.C.—Industrial development in Canada from now on will be concentrated on the coast of British Columbia, according to Major D. B. Martin, Deputy Minister of Industries, who has returned after investigating the industrial situation in the highly industrialized areas of Eastern Canada.

"The eastern industrialist realizes today that the Pacific Coast, British Columbia, is the logical place for industrial expansion because countries bordering on the Pacific will form Canada's greatest market in the future for manufactured goods," Major Martin said.

Tidal Wave Destroys Town

Fishing Village in Lower California Wiped Out

Mexicali, Lower California.—Wireless messages received here report the destruction by a tidal wave of San Jose de Cabo, a small fishing town on the west coast of Lower California, just above Cape San Lucas. The number of lives lost is not known.

Most of the 500 inhabitants of the town are believed to have escaped to higher ground when the tidal wave swept over the place, according to radio advices sent out by a steamer which cleared Cape Lucas shortly before the catastrophe.

What Will Attract Immigrants

To Offer Proper Inducements Is Solution of Problem

Montreal.—"The solution to the immigration problem lies not in expensive propaganda by the Government and the transportation companies, but a general betterment of conditions here in Canada," S. W. L. Griffiths, until recently Deputy High Commissioner in London, declared.

Mr. Griffiths said that when immigrants here could write home and honestly say that living was cheaper and the employment situation good, then the immigration figures would increase to a very appreciable extent.

ON WESTERN TOUR OF INSPECTION

E. W. BEATTY, PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

Discussing Canada's general economic condition on his arrival from the east on his annual inspection trip, E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said it was generally but only slightly better than last year, though the psychology of the country was far from being normal.

"This is in part due to the doubt that the country's trade will realize in money returns the full expectations which we expected earlier in the year," Mr. Beatty said. "If the crop is turned into cash readily and at fair prices, distinct improvement should be noticed before the end of the year."

No final estimate of the crop had yet been made by the company's officers, Mr. Beatty said. There seemed to be a wide area between the estimates made by other authorities, but from the threshing returns coming

Acreage Signed Up Below Quota Necessary To Secure Wheat Pool

Regina.—With the termination of the wheat pool contract campaign in the province it was conceded by Geo. Robertson, publicity secretary of the pool, that the total acreage signed up will be considerably below the quota when all the contracts are in and counted up.

Mr. Robertson estimated that the final results would be between four and five million acres as compared with the 6,346,000 acres necessary to operate the pool under the conditions outlined when the campaign was initiated. This opinion was confirmed by other officials of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Wheat Producers Ltd.

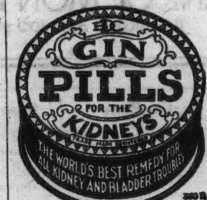

Winnipeg.—Drafting of the contract for use by the Manitoba wheat pool organization next year is now completed. It was stated by W. R. Wood that the contract closely follows the 18-year term contract adopted in Alberta and Saskatchewan, differing only in certain minor details.

Copies will be prepared in readiness for submission at the meetings of the farmers' organizations in the fall in order that members may be well acquainted with the terms by the time the annual convention of the United Farmers of Manitoba is held.

James A. Richardson was elected president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at the annual meeting held here, succeeding John B. Craig. J. C. Gage and C. C. Fields were elected vice-presidents, and Dr. Robert Magill was re-elected secretary. In his address as retiring president, Mr. Craig pointed out that the past year was a difficult one for the grain trade. There was unrest among the farmers. The attempt to reorganize the wheat board which proved a failure and now the efforts to form contract pools all had a disturbing effect on the regular trade. Mr. Craig declared members must consider the interest of the public so that confidence in the present marketing system and in the integrity of the grain dealers may result. Economical and honest handling and marketing of grain must ever be matters of paramount importance in a country where grain raising is the basic industry.

Open Seasons for Game

There is an erroneous impression abroad that the Provincial Government changed all dates for the opening of the shooting season.

The only date changed is that for opening of the duck season, which has been moved forward from September 1st to Sept. 15.

The open season for partridge is as it has always been, the entire month of October; the only change in this respect being an order prohibiting the shooting of partridge north of the Battle River.

The open season for prairie chicken is unchanged, being from Oct. 15 to Oct. 31.

Relieved Rheumatism Too, Says Contractor

Thousands of people everywhere have learned of Tanlac through the statements of others and have taken the treatment with such splendid results that they in turn deem it only fair to relate their experience for the benefit of suffering humanity. Such is the case with L. Desormaux, well-known Electrical Contractor, living at 1066 Berri St., Montreal, who says: "I couldn't do otherwise than publicly endorse Tanlac for I was lucky to find out about the medicine the same way myself. For nearly a year I suffered from indigestion, and also had rheumatism in my legs. About a month ago I was laid up in bed for two weeks with this rheumatism and I had cases of grippe. I lost about eight pounds and felt miserable.

"Three bottles of the Tanlac treatment, besides greatly improving my rheumatism, has made my eating and digestion better than they ever were. I have regained my lost weight, and am feeling extremely well. Tanlac is great."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

Rhodesia May Come

Under British Crown

Governments Now Negotiating to Take Over

The territory of Rhodesia in South Africa will shortly come under the British Crown if the negotiations between the British South Africa Company and the Imperial Government bring the expected result.

Through the action of Cecil Rhodes, this great and promising African region was rescued, for civilization and occupation by white people, from the neglect and savagery of recent centuries. The British South Africa Company did the great work by mandate from Great Britain.

Now the success and magnitude of the work are such that it is clearly better for all concerned that the nation should take over the administration, and arrange a responsible government on lines that have so often been successful in other parts of the Empire.

Mapping Ocean Bed

New Sounding Device Makes More Accurate Chart Possible

An American warship, doing useful peace work, has recently made a journey from Newport, Rhode Island, to Gibraltar, and as it passed over the sea it took soundings of the depths, and was able to make an accurate chart of 3,300 miles of the bed of the Atlantic.

This was done by means of a new sounding device known as the tonic depth-finder, invented by Mr. Harvey Hayes, of the United States Navy. It is a marvelous instrument, and will in four minutes make a more accurate sounding than has hitherto been possible in three hours.

So successful was this wonderful voyage that two destroyers were now charting the bed of the Pacific.

The woman looked up, studied his face earnestly, then said: "I can't go tomorrow night. Can't you get some other night off?"—Chicago Tribune.

The police have no clue to the perpetrators.
